Multifactor Authentication

“Please enter the six digit code to proceed.”

Multifactor Authentication (“MFA”) is the new norm for any online system. We have all received One Time Passcodes (“OTPs”) for everything from your email to your Shell Federal Credit Union account to your Sock of the Month club. But WHY do we use these? Quite simply, this makes your account more secure by requiring bad guys to intercept private communications, which is extremely difficult. According to a 2019 study by Google, MFA “helped block 100% of automated bots, 96% of bulk phishing attacks, and 76% of targeted attacks.”

But for this to help secure your account, we have to work together! When you receive a code from Shell FCU via text or email, DO NOT GIVE IT TO ANYONE. Think of it like your house. Would you give your alarm code to a door to door salesman because he or she seems trustworthy? Of course not.

Make sure to read the ENTIRE message received with the code. If the code reads “Do not give this out to anyone” you should definitely pay close attention. Shell FCU will NEVER call you and request your one time passcode. Keeping this private will help keep your account secure and your money safe.

Not sure that the person calling you is an actual Shell Federal Credit Union employee? Hang up on them and call us back at (713) 844-1100. We promise, we won’t be offended. Always be suspicious of incoming calls claiming to be from Shell Federal Credit Union, and NEVER give out a passcode, regardless of the caller’s request.
